

IGI Global Fair Use Guidelines for Authors

This document sets forth the policy of IGI Global (“IGI”), publisher of “IGI Publishing”, “IRM Press”, “Information Science Publishing”, “CyberTech Publishing”, and “Information Science Reference” imprints, regarding an author’s fair use of manuscripts submitted to and copyrighted and published by IGI.

Prior to submitting final manuscripts to IGI for publication the author will assign to IGI all right, title and interest in and to the manuscript, including ownership of the entire copyright in the manuscript. The foregoing agreements of the author are set forth in the Author’s Warranty and Transfer of Copyright Agreement (the “Agreement”), which each author must sign prior to IGI’s acceptance of any work by such author. The Agreement is important in two respects. First, the “author’s warranty” provides IGI with the necessary assurances by the author that the manuscript is original, does not infringe upon the rights of any third party, has not been previously published or submitted for publication previously, assigned, licensed or otherwise encumbered, and is offered in good faith for the benefit of one or more academic disciplines and scholarly pursuits. Second, the “transfer of copyright” is the author’s acknowledgment that once accepted, the manuscript becomes the property of IGI and that the author agrees to execute all documents necessary for IGI to perfect its ownership of the entire copyright in the manuscript. Under no circumstances will IGI publish any submitted manuscript without the author’s name and affiliation attached to the submission inasmuch as IGI’s role in publishing the manuscript is limited to “light editing” such as sentence and grammar corrections, punctuation and style concerns, and other general editorial corrections.

By signing the IGI Agreement, the author acknowledges, understands and agrees that:

1. The author retains the rights to any intellectual property developed by the author and included in the manuscript including, without limitation, any models, theories, or conclusions formulated by the author. While the author may use any and all thoughts and research results developed or accumulated while working on a manuscript, and may rewrite, update, and re-title them for use in other publications, the author CANNOT use the verbatim text of the manuscript or any part thereof that has been copyrighted by IGI without first obtaining the written permission of IGI, using for that purpose the form attached hereto as Exhibit “A” and made a part hereof.
2. The author retains the right to post a copy of the manuscript that has been copyrighted by IGI on a secure university Website for use by students in nonprofit educational institutions, provided that (a) there is no charge to the student to access the link and the posted copy includes the IGI copyright information and IGI Website address (see sample below) and (b) prior to posting the manuscript, the author has secured the consent of IGI to such use by submitting the form attached hereto as Exhibit “A” and made a part hereof.

3. Generally, IGI will consent to the author’s posting of the final version of the manuscript in a university or other nonprofit educational institution archive or on the author’s personal website, provided that (a) the posted copy includes the IGI copyright information and IGI Website address (see sample below) and (b) prior to posting the manuscript, the author has secured the consent of IGI to such use by submitting the form attached hereto as Exhibit “A” and made a part hereof.

4. Generally, IGI will consent to the author's republication of the author's manuscript that has been copyrighted by IGI and that appears in IGI publications, provided that (a) the manuscript is being republished in a work that is edited by the same author and (b) prior to publishing the manuscript, the author has secured the consent of IGI to such use by submitting the form attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof. In addition to the foregoing requirements for consent to republication, the republished work must acknowledge the original publication where the material was published as follows:

5. Notwithstanding the foregoing, IGI copyrighted materials CANNOT:

- be used in a coursepack without first securing the consent of IGI to such use by submitting the form attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof;
- be copied and distributed for any monetary consideration without first securing the consent of IGI to such use by submitting the form attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof;
- be used without citation of original use; or
- be given to a commercial third party to post, copy, distribute, sell or give for free or for any monetary consideration .

IGI's goal is to participate and support the research community as long as its investment in and ownership of published manuscripts are respected by the research community and IGI's authors and editors.

Request from Author for Reuse of IGI Materials

IGI Global (“IGI”) recognizes that some of its authors would benefit professionally from the ability to reuse a portion or all of some manuscripts that the author wrote and submitted to IGI for publication. Prior to the use of IGI copyrighted materials in any fashion contemplated by the IGI Fair Use Guidelines for Authors, the author must submit this form, completed in its entirety, and secure from IGI the written permission to use such materials. Further, as a condition of IGI providing its consent to the reuse of IGI materials, the author agrees to furnish such additional information or documentation that IGI, in its sole discretion, may reasonably request in order to evaluate the request for permission and extent of use of such materials.
